LAMBARDI COMPANY ENTERS LAST WEEK OF LOCAL SONG SEASON

'Faust' To Be Sung Tonight, with 'Andrea Chenier' Tomorrow Night

With tonight's opera, Gounod's ever-popular "Faust," the Lambardi Grand Opera Company enters upon its farewell week of song in Honolulu. While sung with much success and before a capacity audience at the Opera house on Friday, March 7, there are hundreds more who failed to secure seats for the tuneful work and a repetition was arranged. Vicarino's triumph as Marguerite, Martino's great success in the natural role of "The Evil One" (Mephistopheles), and the excellent portrayal of the opera in general stamped it as one of the extraordinary features of the present Lambardi engagement. The cast to be heard tonight is identical with that of the previous performance, and the usual long line of ticket buyers was in evidence this morning when the seat sale opened at the Hawaiian Promotion Rooms.

The cast of principals is as follows: Faust G. Agostini Mephistopheles G. Martino Valentine M. Giovacchini Siebel S. Charlebois Marguerite R. Vicarino An especial opera event within the week will be the Military Night, Tuesday, when Giordano's famous historical work, "Andrea Chenier," will be the offering. This immense production has been prepared in honor of the military forces of the island, owing to the fact that the main incidents of the play are hedged about with situations of deep military interest. The scenes are laid in Russia, and in Paris, at the time of the French Revolution. It is said to be the most extensive work produced by the Lambardi company, musically, dramatically and from the standpoint of scenic effects.

The music of the opera is very original. One can feel the great revolution all through, almost in every note, so realistically has Giordano depicted the ambient of those tragic days which followed the outbreak of 1879. The predominant theme of the first act is a minuet in which is described the frivolity of French society on the eve of the Revolution. One of the greatest songs ever written is said to occur in the first act, the declaration of Andrea Chenier, the Revolutionary poet, wherein he vehemently scorns the ruling class of those days. Signor Agostini, the tenor, will be heard in this remarkable scene. In San Francisco, where the opera was demanded thirteen presentations, Agostini received recall after recall after rendering the beautiful hymn to his country. The production of "Andrea Chenier" requires the services, upon the stage, of nine principal singers. A synopsis of the play will be printed in these columns on Tuesday.

On Wednesday evening Bizet's "Carmen," for which there is a heavy demand, will be presented.

The repertoire for the remainder of the week has been arranged according to the written requests received by the management. It is as follows: Thursday—"Aida."

Friday—"Madame Butterfly."

Saturday matinee—"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci."

Saturday evening—"La Boheme."

"Madame Butterfly" a Triumph.

"Madame Butterfly," sung on Saturday night by the Lambardis, ranks with the best the operatic stars have produced here. Vicarino was in excellent voice and Agostini no less ready for a fine interpretation, their work as Madame Butterfly and Lieut. Pinkerton respectively naturally leading the others. The staging was elaborate.

Announcement that "La Boheme" and "Butterfly" are to be repeated is gratifying to the lovers of Puccini's music here, of whom there are many.

PRISONERS HEAR GRAND OPERA STARS

Several of the Lambardi stars journeyed to Oahu prison yesterday and sang for the unfortunates confined there. The program was beautifully arranged and the services were held under the mammoth Umbrella Tree. The artists as a rule attend divine services on Sunday, no matter in what part of the world their travels may take them. Yesterday, however, they were pleased at the opportunity of singing for the prisoners, and they entered into the spirit of the meeting with the same heart and interest that they have displayed upon the theater stage for the past two weeks.

The program was as follows: Prayer Mr. A. F. Cooke Melodie (Denza) Sig. Nicoletti Aria from "Tosca" Mme. Vicarino Ave Maria (Gounod) Mme. Fox Ensemble number Prison Quartette Lullaby (Gertrude Ross) Mme. Fox "Last Rose of Summer" Mme. Vicarino "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" Prison Octette "The Rosary" Mme. Fox Benediction Mr. Cooke

The opera stars expressed themselves in high terms of both the individual voices and the ensemble singing of the prisoners, personally commending their efforts and speaking kind words of uplift and encouragement to the men. That a deep impression was made upon the hearts of the unfortunates within the prison walls there is no doubt. The visitors were accorded the most respectful attention, and the occasion will remain ever as a delight to all who were present. The artists arrived at the prison in automobiles placed at their disposal by those in authority, and at the close of the beautiful service were driven to their various hotels.

Fred L. Waldron Accepts Position as Chairman of Committee and Fellow-Members Are Happy

Accepting the position left vacant by the resignation of Zeno K. Myers, Fred L. Waldron has accepted the chairmanship of the local promotion committee and will enter into his new work immediately. As announced in this paper Mr. Myers' resignation was tendered to and accepted by the committee at its regular meeting last Saturday, at which time Mr. Waldron's name was proposed to fill the vacancy. A committee of the promotion committee called upon Mr. Waldron Saturday afternoon and informed him of his appointment.

Mr. Waldron, who is known as one of the best progressive promotion men of which Hawaii boasts, was a member of the promotion committee several years ago, and shortly after joining became chairman. It was at this time that he, in company with Secretary Wood, carried on a publicity campaign which was a prime factor in heading the line of tourist travel toward the islands. It is believed that the next two years will be the most important in the history of the local committee, and the promotion lists are of the opinion that during that time the tourist travel to Hawaii will be trebled. Plans will also be made to secure more accommodations for the incoming tourists, and to meet the heavy tourist traffic which is expected during the 1915 world's fair at San Francisco.

Secretary Wood believes that now is the time to locate a branch of the local promotion committee in San Francisco, and for this reason more funds will be needed than are now being allotted to the committee. The tourists are now beginning to look upon Hawaii not only as a winter resort but as a possible home. Many tourists coming here during the past year have purchased sites and erected fine homes, and many homeseekers are constantly writing to Secretary Wood inquiring into the price of living, real estate, etc.

At the meeting Saturday afternoon, the Star-Bulletin was awarded the contract for printing 100,000 Hawaii folders and 50,000 Hawaii primers, its tender being $2375 and $1107 respectively.

Recent communications received from Walter G. Smith, who is at present making a tour of the states lecturing on the Hawaiian Islands, tell of a trip he made to his old home town, Ithica, New York. There he was given a royal reception by the college students of Cornell University, from which institute he was graduated. In another characteristic letter to friends here, he tells of his interview with Andrew D. White, Cornell's old president, and old-time friend of the late Alatau T. Atkinson and Hiram Bingham. The Hawaiian-Cornell Club engaged a hall for Mr. Smith during his stay in Ithica, and arranged a lecture for him which he delivered on March 4. The lecture was extensively advertised in the newspapers and the hall was crowded. Another letter received here from Edward C. Brown, formerly manager of the Dearborn Drug & Chemical Company here, tells of the reception tendered Mr. Smith in Chicago. Mr. Smith lectured in that city at the La Salle Hotel under the auspices of the Chicago association of commerce.

Lionel Walden, the famous American-French artist, who visited Hawaii some time ago, is now working on a canvas for the season's salon in Paris. This canvas depicts a surf rider at Waikiki beach. Several of Mr. Walden's canvases are owned by Honolulu people.

METCALF SAYS MET HOLDUP

Thomas Metcalf, a soldier, has reported to the central police station that in passing along Ala Lane last evening he was set upon by a man whom he afterward identified as Antonio Rodriguez, who robbed him of a purse containing change to the amount of $6.

Metcalf states that he was going along the highway when, without a word of warning, he was accosted by Rodriguez and knocked down. Trying to raise his feet, a struggle ensued in which the soldier claims to have been overpowered by his assailant.

He sounded the well-known alarm, which resulted in bringing several people to the scene. Rodriguez, in attempting to make his escape from the lan, ran into the waiting arms of Officer Gomez. He was subjected to a grilling examination at police station this morning, though he continued stoutly maintain his innocence.

HAND SHATTERED BY DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

Through prompt medical assistance, the life of a Korean fisherman named Nam Shi Ban, who suffered the complete loss of a hand has been saved.

A victim of a dynamite explosion, the Korean, who follows the occupation of a fisherman at Kuaohoe, had used the treacherous and high-powered explosive with the result that his hand had been blown away while one side of his face had been badly lacerated. The man was saved from death only through the action of Deputy Sheriff Davis of Koolapoko and Dr. Tuttle the latter conveying the patient to the hospital.
